

There simply MUST be more public discussion and debate about something so critical to what is left of our democracy. I find the rush to change current regulations simply incomprehensible, unless I factor in the awful, final, triumph of the corporation over the public. Then it all makes sad, horrible sense.